Washington D.C., March 10, 2008:

The Environmental Film Festival announces the launch of The Green Film Forum, an online resource for environmental filmmaking and audience discussion. The Green Film Forum is a place to explore environmental filmmaking and environmental issues from across the world, both during the festival and throughout the year.

What to expect:

- Discuss films you've seen at the Environmental Film Festival with our new online discussion forums
- Join discussion forums on filmmaking, environmental issues, and the international environmental film and festival scenes
- Find the latest articles on environmental filmmaking
- Post and watch your own green film shorts and discuss them with others online
- Learn about resources and tips for making environmental films

How to become a GFF member:

To use our discussion forums, you need to become an online member. It's free and easy to sign up. Go to www.dcenvironmentalfilmfest.org. Click on "Green Film Forum." Click on "Discussion Forums." Click on "Register." Once you've created a username, log in whenever you want and join the discussion!
